I got the notebook and began the assignment log. Grandpa has been checking off on my assignments and even helping me with some of the work.	So far I've turned in the last four assignments and it feels so good to not being making excuses.
Talking to my teacher really made a difference since now she knows I'm trying. She said she would talk to a couple of students and see if they could meet with me when I need help. If they can, she'll give me their names and I'll try to work times. She offered to meet with me before school on Tuesdays and Thursdays if I could get there early.	I left my notebook at home one day and just used some regular paper to write down the assignments. I'm going to have to double check at night to make sure it's in my backpack. Tuesdays won't work for me because of my mom's schedule, but I can be there early on Thursdays.
